It Is Often Beyond the Power of the Poet to Explain It.

One need not go to the realms of pace, or time, or figures to meet with the incomprehensible. Despite modern science and ingenuity this word still remains the only applicable epithet for some of the achievements of Indian conjurers. We can smile at the luminous appearance of the beautiful face before which as the revelation of Osiris the old Egyptians prostrated themselves in awe—for the marvels of the magic lantern are familiar to us, the early existence of gunpowder gives an easy explanation of the oracle's lightning and thunder, the weird harmony of Memnon was merely the result of an ingenious mechanical contrivance—but shrewd travelers of later date, whose veracity is beyond dispute, tell of much more inexplicable things than these. One of the best known writers on occultism, Jacolliot, has left an account of certain things he saw during his official sojourn in India which, as they seem to defy explanation, may fairly be classed among things incomprehensible. The performer was one whom he accidentally met and who required some persuasion before he would exhibit feats which, he continually affirmed, were the work of other intelligences.

On some sticks fixed upright in flowerpots were placed some leaves from a tree, with holes in each sufficiently large to make them fall to the level of the mold. Standing at a considerable distance, the fakir made a gesture with his hands. A slight breeze seemed to pervade the room, then the leaves quivered and gradually worked upward on the sticks. Jacolliot placed himself between the flowerpots and the operator, placed the sticks in the floor and adopted every means he could imagine to frustrate any trickery, but nothing he did made any difference to the movement of the leaves.

The more familiar feat of the seemingly supernatural growth of flowers was utterly eclipsed by another instance vouched for by the same narrator. His own servant brought him a score or so of seeds, from which he selected and marked one. The fakir planted it in a pot of earth, muttered some words over it and fell into a sort of trance, which lasted about 30 minutes. He then awoke, uncovered the pot and discovered a seedling two or three inches high. Jacolliot examined it and found it had sprung from the seed which he had marked.

With a touch of a peacock's feather the fakir depressed a balance of a common weighing machine in daily use in the household, though in the other was a weight of 12 stones, and with a distant motion of his hand he made shavings of wood to sink or move in water. Still more marvelous is the description of the manner in which this veritable eastern wizard was able to set at defiance the law of gravity. On this occasion, when leaving the room, he paused on the threshold, folded his arms, and, by a simple act of volition, raised himself from the floor and remained poised in air for some minutes.—London Standard.

TURGENEFF ABHORS SPORT.

How a Dying Pheasant Influenced His Whole Career.

The celebrated Russian novelist, Turgeneff, tells a most touching incident from his own life, which awakened in him sentiments that have colored all his writings with a deep and tender feeling.

When Turgeneff was a boy of 10, his father took him out one day bird shooting. As they tramped across the brown stubble a golden pheasant rose with a low whirr from the ground at his feet, and with the joy of a sportsman throbbed his veins he raised his gun and fired, wild with excitement, when the creature fell fluttering at his side. Life was ebbing fast, but the instinct of the mother was stronger than death itself, and with a feeble flutter of her wings the mother bird reached the nest where her young brood were huddled, unconscious of danger. Then, with such a look of pleading and reproach that his heart stood still at the ruin he had wrought, and never to his dying day did he forget the feeling of cruelty and guilt that came to him in that moment, the little brown head toppled over, and only the dead body of the mother shielded her nestlings.

"Father, father," he cried, "what have I done?" as he turned his horror-stricken face to his father. But not to his father's eyes had this little tragedy been enacted, and he said: "Well done, my son. That was well done for your first shot. You will soon be a fine sportsman."

"Never, father, never again shall I destroy any living creature. If that is sport, I will have none of it. Life is more beautiful to me than death, and since I cannot give life I will not take it."—Atlanta Constitution.

Needed the Money.

"If you fellows hain't decided on who you're fur in the tax collector's race, I wish you'd fling in for Tom Duncan."

"What fur?"

"Fur bekase he needs the ofies wuss than any man in the race."

"Hain't crippled, is he?"

"No, but—"

"Hain't been sick so he couldn't wuck ner nuthin, haz he?"

"No, but he is jest out of the chain gang, whar he haz been fur six months, an hain't had a chance to make nairy cent. He's the man that rally needs the ofies, fellers."—Atlanta Journal.

Opinion is a light, vain, crude and imperfect thing settled in the imagination, but never arriving at the understanding, there to obtain the tincture of reason.—Ben Jonson.

The street decoration which takes place so often in St. Petersburg is never completed and frequently not even begun until the night preceding the event to be celebrated.

Love that Alters.

"Love is not love that alters when it alteration finds."

That is one of the sublimest lines in all literature. It is the final definition of love by the world's greatest reader of the human mind.—Shakespeare. Nearly all women who truly love, love in this sublime way.

Men seldom do.

Woman's most glorious endowment is the power to awaken and hold the pure and honest love of a worthy man. When she loses it and still loves on, no one in the wide world can know the heart agony she endures. The woman who suffers from weakness and derangement of her special womanly organism soon loses the power to sway the heart of a man. Her general health suffers and she loses her good looks, her attractiveness, her amiability and her power and prestige as a woman. Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., with the assistance of his staff of able physicians, has prescribed for many thousands of women. He has devised a perfect and scientific remedy for women's ailments. It is known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a positive specific for all weaknesses, diseases, disorders, displacements, irregularities, and debilitating drains peculiar to women. It purifies, regulates, strengthens and heals. Medicine dealers sell it, and no honest dealer will advise you to accept a substitute that he may make a little larger profit.

I was afflicted with kidney trouble and I have always had a torpid liver," writes Mrs. E. Crosswhite, of Duffau, Brath Co., Texas. "When I commenced your medicine I was not able to stand on my feet. I used one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and five vials of his 'Pleasant Pellets.' I am now well. I had not walked in four months when I commenced the treatment; but in ten days I was able to walk everywhere."

Didn't Work.

After three successive failures in a costly experiment one of Mr. Edison's associates, worn out with the strain, asked, "Why don't you worry a little about it, Mr. Edison?"

"Why should I?" replied the inventor. "You are worrying enough for two."

Fond Delusion.

Optician—Yes; you see double. I can correct the fault with spectacles. Patient—Hurry! Maybe it isn't twins, after all.—Jewelers' Weekly.

The largest gold coin in the world is the British sovereign piece; the smallest is called a Perola and has a value of only 44 cents.

MAKING ALGER AN ISSUE.

The Republicans who are offended at the words "free coinage," and are trying to make it appear that it is not an issue, seem disposed to make Secretary Alger, little as he is, the great issue of the campaign. John Sherman, ex-Secretary of State, bitterly attacks the Secretary saying:

"The man who is responsible for the mismanagement of the Cuban campaign, resulting in the needless loss of scores of American soldiers' lives and in the infliction of horrible tortures upon a thousand brave defenders of their country's honor, should not be in the Cabinet. The President has power to order an investigation, which can be conducted by a board of inquiry, to be appointed by him. Such a board would not have executive power and the findings would have a moral rather than a judicial influence. If the board found that American soldiers had needlessly suffered and died because of the neglect or incompetence of an official of the Government, the President, acting upon the verdict rendered, could remove the official from office. That would be the extent of the punishment under such conditions. If, however, the President does not order an investigation, Congress holds the power to impeach the Secretary of War, and can inflict punishment that will mean everlasting disgrace in case of conviction. In that case the President would be held equally responsible with the Secretary for not having ordered an inquiry promptly upon the presentation of charges of so serious a character."

"In my opinion the President will find he will be compelled to order an investigation in self-defense. If the Secretary of War has been guilty of incompetency and neglect, as has been charged, McKinley cannot afford to sustain him."

That is plain talk from eminent Republican authority. If the President does not order an investigation, Congress can impeach the Secretary of War and in case of his conviction the President would be held equally responsible with the Secretary. Alger makes a nice little side issue for Republicans. It is charged that many of our soldiers have died and many others have suffered severely because of his neglect and incompetence, and these charges are substantiated by men of all shades of politics, yet he is kept in the Cabinet and the President will not order an investigation of his conduct.

THEY SEE IT NOW.

The war is over and we are told that it cost $150,000,000, though $200,000,000 of bonds were issued and a revenue tax passed that transfers $1,000,000 a day from the pockets of the people to the surplus in the treasury.

When war was declared against Spain Senator Stewart and other Silver Senators proposed to issue $150,000,000 in legal tender notes, (greenbacks), in lieu of bonds, and to coin the silver bullion owned by the Government, to carry on the war. The gold men would not listen to the proposition. They preferred interest bearing bonds to legal tender, non-interest bearing notes and silver dollars. They charged that it was unpatriotic to introduce the financial question in Congress when the country was at war with a foreign nation. They would not admit that the issuance of bonds had as much bearing on the financial question as the coining of silver and the issuance of legal tender notes, and being in a majority, they had their way.

Now all the people see, what the silver men in Congress saw three months ago, that an issue of $100,000,000 of greenbacks and the coining of the silver bullion owned by the Government would have been ample to have carried on the war without one dollar's expense to the people. That would increase the volume of money about two dollars per capita, give an impetus to business by increasing the prices of products and of labor and place the country on the high road to prosperity.

FOR A STRAIGHT TICKET.

The Elko Independent says that the Democrats of Elko county, after a thorough study of the political situation, have determined to cut short all pending negotiations for fusion, and resolved to nominate a full State ticket, irrespective of any nominations that may be made by any other party. The Elko delegation to the State Convention believing in the honesty and integrity of Hon. George Russell of Elko have resolved to present his name to the convention for the office of Governor and to use every effort to secure his nomination.

That settles the fusion question so far as the Elko delegation is concerned. If the other delegates to the Democratic convention follow the example of the Elko men they will put a straight ticket in the field as they did four years ago, when their candidate for Congress, a well known and respectable citizen of the State, received less than 250 votes.

Mr. Russell was a strong advocate of fusion two years ago, when he desired the endorsement of the Silver Party for Presidential Elector, and probably would favor it again, notwithstanding the resolutions of the Elko delegation, if the Silver Party would endorse him for Governor.

DO NOT WANT REPUBLICANS.

Our neighbor thinks it is time for some Republican candidate for the United States Senate to show himself. What earthly use has Nevada for a Republican Senator or Representative in Congress? Nine tenths of the people of this State want silver remonetized so that our mines can be worked and our abandoned mining towns repopulated. The Republican party is opposed to what the people of Nevada want, and, therefore, the people do not want a Republican in either House of Congress. It would be a great misfortune if Nevada by any combination of politicians or circumstances should send Republicans to the Senate and House of Representatives in place of Stewart and Newlands. Nevada will continue the fight which it inaugurated for the free coining of silver until the battle is won, which it will be in 1900, and, therefore, will not elect a Republican Senator or Representative.

Democratic County Central Committee.

Notice is hereby given that a meeting of the Democratic County Central Committee will be held at Judge Haydon's law office, Pawning Building, Tuesday evening, August 30th, at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of apportioning delegates to the County Convention, fixing date of said convention and of primaries for the election of delegates.

RHEVITIES.

A number of cattlemen from various points were interested visitors at the Board of Health meeting yesterday.

W. T. Moran and J. T. Deveney of Virginia were passengers for San Jose last evening as Nevada delegates to the Y. M. I. which meets in that city.

As an evidence of what may be expected in the way of increased commerce between the United States and the Philippines is fairly illustrated by an order received by a Milwaukee brewing company, whose agent cabled for sixty-seven carloads of bottled beer for immediate shipment.

The railways are beginning to figure on a big return movement of the troops. Already the southern lines have been requested to send in bids for moving the men at Chickamauga camp and they are asking their western connections for basing rates. The central passenger lines some time ago agreed to a rate of 1 1/2 cents per mile, but the western lines have never taken any associated action.

A Pathetic Picture Too Frequently Presented in the Business World.

He is a familiar figure in almost every business house—the old clerk. White haired, thin, with clothes that are always of decent black and scrupulously brushed, he has set behind the same desk or stood behind the same counter for dear knows how many years, growing thinner and older and mustier as the time went by. Sometimes we meet him in the early morning going down to office or store, walking the same route he has trod for 20 or 30 years with a regularity so perfect that the very policeman on the beat might set his watch by his movements. Often, late at night, when we are going home from the theater we see him through the iron grated window, still bending over his ledger, for he works slowly nowadays and must work overtime to make up his accounts. His eyes are growing dim and he fumbles with his glasses, his hands are losing their trick of deft penmanship, and his brain is swift. He does not understand it, but the fly boys all about him, young enough to be his sons, rush through their tasks and are out and gone while he is still laboring over his. Slowly but surely it is being borne in on him that he cannot compete with them.

In the manager's office he is already becoming a problem. Customers have begun to complain of his slowness. A man, not intentionally cruel, called out that he wanted somebody who was alive to wait on him; not that old fossil. A woman complained that he had not matched a sample and asked why they kept blind people. The old clerk heard them, and it sounded like the knell of his own foreboding thoughts. He knows that the time is coming when he must go. He has seen it happen before with others. First he will be retired to some other department, with less work and less pay. They will remember for a time the many years of faithful service in which he has seen the firm grow from small beginnings to present wealth.

Then after a time they will forget even that, and one day when he has been slower than usual or some mistake has passed unnoticed by his dim eyes they will send for him to come to the president's room, and he will be told that they think it best to put a boy in that department—somebody who is young and quick and can get about swiftly. Sometimes they give him a little pension, oftener not, but in either case he goes out a poor, heart broken old man. They talk to him of enjoying leisure, but he has never learned the art of idling, and so he hangs about the store after he is dismissed, walking by it through sheer force of habit. To others it is a commonplace enough store or office. To him it is the mausoleum where lies buried his youth, with all its dreams and hopes and ambitions, and there is a tear under the smile on his wintry old face as he says that he has left Blank & Blank's and has got too old to work.—New Orleans Picayune.

Spiders' Web Silk.

It would appear from all accounts that M. Chacot's enterprise of the manufacture of spiders' web silk is to be pursued on a large scale, a factory in Paris having been taken for the purpose. Here the spiders will be kept and worked at regular hours, and when one of them is used up he will be fed and helped back to condition again, while another will take his place on the hobbin. An expert, fully acquainted with the habits of the insect, will be in control of the spider department of the factory, the care of them, feeding, housing, etc.

In obtaining the requisite supply, if the latter exceeds what is necessary for the industry, experiments will be made with a view to ascertaining which of the different varieties produces the finest quality of silk, and in this way those not favored with a fine web will be weeded out. Trials will likewise be made with different diets in order to determine whether or not it is possible to train the spider to give forth a web that is an improvement on the ordinary product, the expectation being that perseverance in this respect will result in securing a quality of silk hitherto unsurpassed.

What She Heard at Church.

He—I suppose your thoughts were all on your new bonnet during the sermon this morning?

She—No, indeed, they were not.

He—I don't believe you can repeat anything that was said during the service.

"Yes, I can."
